INSPIRING SCOTLAND

Support in the Right Direction (SiRD2021) October 2018 – March 2021

30 projects across 31 local authority areas in Scotland have been funded by Scottish Government to provide independent support to families and carers accessing the social care system. The purpose of independent support is to help people and carers make informed decisions and plans for their social care and maximise their choice and control over those arrangements using self-directed support (SDS) options.

Includes:

Progress report:

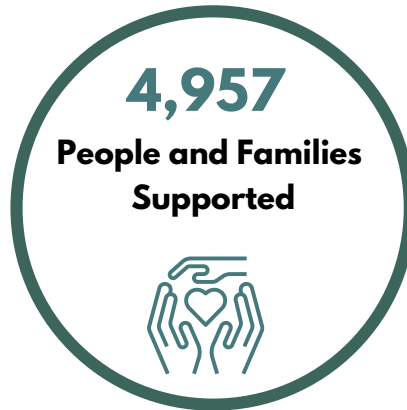

1. Information about outputs and types of support provided for the full 18-month period from when the programme started in October 2018.
2. Update on project activity from October 2019 to 31 March 2020.

SiRD2021 Covid-19 response:

The Covid-19 pandemic and subsequent lockdown started to take effect in the last couple of weeks of the latest report period. In June 2020 we asked projects what the impact of lockdown was on their activities and how they had responded to new demands the pandemic had created.

SUPPORT IN THE RIGHT DIRECTION

COVID-19 RESPONSE SURVEY

INSPIRING SCOTLAND

In June, Inspiring Scotland and Self-Directed Support Scotland carried out a joint survey of SiRD funded organisations and SDSS members, asking about the role they played at the beginning of the COVID-19 crisis.

SIRD funded projects told us about:

- Increases in the volume of support they provided between March and June due to the Covid-19 lockdown.
- How they responded to Covid-19 specific needs for support locally
- The difference their response made for the people supported
- Why, as an independent support organisation, they were best placed to help

SDSS will share findings from their members separately.

The volume of support provided by organisations increased

PA employers needed advice on employment law, the implications of shielding and self-isolation, PA changes and furlough

People affected by the temporary closure of day care centres needed support to explore other options

More people needed support with emergency planning and contingencies measures

More unpaid carers needed support as they struggled to cope and new carers were seeking support

Independent support organisations responded by

Supporting PA employers and unpaid carers to access PPE.

Providing information and support about COVID. They helped people interpret government and local HSCP guidance, understand the implications for their care, and apply the guidance to their individual circumstances.

Providing emotional support. A larger number of people are experiencing anxiety and mental health issues. Emotional support is now a necessary part of services being delivered.

What did they do?

Provided support to help Carers and Personal Assistants to access PPE.

- Worked with the LA/HSCP to identify PA employers who needed PPE and help coordinate distribution.
- Provided PPE doorstep deliveries.
- Carers centres also triaged distribution of PPE for unpaid carers.

Providing support for PA Employers to interpret COVID-19 guidance and implications for them and their staff. Independent support organisations:

- Were a communication channel for local and national guidance.
- Provided PA key worker verification letters.
- Developed easy read guidance documents.
- Completed 1:1 Covid-19 risk assessments for care and support.

Contributed to the Covid-19 emergency response:

- Arranged food parcels, medicine distribution and essential items for shielding carers, people unable to leave home and people coming out of hospital.
- Worked with the local authority to access testing for PAs.
- Sourced crisis funding for people and provided support with benefits.

Identified people at risk and helped arrange alternative support:

- Identified where care had ceased & people whose packages had changed.
- Sourced PAs to provide cover where care providers had gaps.
- Supported people to change provider.

The difference this made

People were better able to manage their care.

They were more:

- Confident and reassured about Covid-19 guidance
- Informed about their rights under emergency legislation
- Informed of their social care options and support available to them
- In control and equipped to deal with emergency situations
- Able to continue managing their direct payments

People's mental health was supported

- People felt cared for and less isolated
- People were listened to, reassured, less anxious and stressed
- Practical support to access PPE, food and medication also helped reduced people's worries.

Why were independent support organisations the best placed to help people?

Made me feel at ease and uncomplicated a complicated system

Independent support user

- They have trusting relationships with people
- They have knowledge of individual's circumstances
- They have existing communication channels with HSCP
- They are known as hubs of good information and will take the time to help people understand

They also

- Understand the barriers facing people who use social care
- Are responsive to people's needs
- Have local knowledge and connections in the community
- “It's what we already do best”
